NGORONGORO CRATER

The Ngorongoro National Park is located west of Arusha, connecting to the Serengeti in the north-west and to the Great Rift Valley in the east.

The park was established as a conservation area for wildlife and the semi-nomadic Maasai population that reside in it.

The caldera is an important landmark for human history, as well as an essential habitat safeguarding animal diversity.

Despite its small area, the caldera has excellent biodiversity, and several globally threatened species live on these plains. These plains form part of the route of the Great Migration. The caldera is of scientific importance as important discoveries were made here that shed light on the path of human evolution.

Another amazing site is the Olduvai Gorge, a 14km long ravine. In order to protect this incredible natural wonder, visitor numbers are closely monitored, and you must obtain a permit to enter the crater and the gorge.

The crater was formed around 2.5 million years ago when a volcano - erupted and collapsed in on itself. Now dormant, the volcano's crater is 610 metres deep and 20km wide, making it the world's largest inactive caldera.

SERENGETI & MASAI MARA; THE BEST OF EAST AFRICA!

With almost every species of animal great and small in the parks, these are Africa's premier wildlife areas.

You are almost guaranteed to encounter Africa's 'Big Five' (Lion, Leopard, Buffalo, Elephant and Rhino).

This is safari at its best and Africa at its most spectacular.

Heartland of the Masai, a landscape where Africa is laid bare in all its majesty.

Here the endless struggle for survival is played out across the vast open plains and riverine forests of this captivating land.

Each year the Serengeti and Mara explode into life, as the annual migration of great herds of wildebeest journey between these two wonders to fresh pastures. This becomes a setting for the crossing of some 1.3 million animals, bringing with them the inevitable predators and dramas.
